Many Members Already Here. very large number of members of ppth houses are already in Richmond, and there will be practically complete attendance at the cancus to-night.

The lobbies at Murphy's Hotel were crowded last night. Members were quietly, taking each other's views as to the best selection for a Supreme Court The new members were meetthe their colleagues, and a number who have seen service in former years were present to greet old acquaintances As to the tax matter, several expressed the view tht it should be disposed of it this session if possible, but if that were found to be impracticable, that a joint commission from the two houses should be appointed, with power to employ experts to prepare proper non-partisan bills for consideration of a special session next fall.

The Senate Finance Committee is still wrestling with the appropriation bill. General E. W. Nichols, of the Virginia Military Institute, arrived in the city fast night, and has asked for a hearing before the committee this morning. A subcommittee worked with Auditor C. Lee Moore for some hours yesterday afternoon, pruning item after item in the hope of bringing the total within the agreed amount, without at the same the agreed amount, without at the same time seriously crippling any of the State's great institutions. The committee expects to act on the final draft of the bill to-day, and to report it to the Senate to-morrow.

School-teachers should not shoulder the responsibility of teaching sex hygiene to the young, said Prof. Winfield Scott Hall in the discussion of education for race betterment. He declared it was important, however, that the school-teacher should susure purity of atmosphere in school by close supervision of recreation periods.

Among others who addressed the conference to-day were Dr. J. McKenn Cattell, of Columbia University, and Hastings H. Hart, of New York.
